Hand in deadline

Vocational Scenario or Context	Every day, millions of scam texts and emails are sent to people in the UK. Accounts get broken into, people are tricked into paying for things that never arrive, and a lot of us share far more about ourselves online than we realise. The College is putting together a Digital Life Guide to help new students, and their families who are visiting the campus, stay safe online. You have been asked to join the research team. How would you explain one way of staying safe online to the visitors (new students and their families) who want to learn about them? You are going to choose ONE topic to research and collect information about. You will then present what you have found out as a PowerPoint presentation. It could be an overview or an aspect of one of the below: • Passwords, and how accounts get broken into • Phishing: scam texts, emails and fake delivery messages • Privacy settings and what you share on social media • Online shopping scams and fake sellers • Staying safe while gaming: in-game chat, strangers and spending money • Keeping a phone secure: screen locks, app permissions and public Wi-Fi • Cyberbullying, and how to report it Agree your final title with your tutor before you start your research. Keep it narrow enough to finish in the time you have.

Task	Task 1 The visitors have arrived at college where they heard they could get the answers to their questions. The principal has asked your class to form the research and presentation team that will answer their questions about Staying Safe Online. Before starting on your research, you will need to decide on the focus for your own individual topic. Discuss this with your tutor and agree a tittle for your research.

	Create a to-do list showing the tasks you need to complete in the time frame given to you. Set up a research log and keep it updated while you carry out your research. Use different sources to find information about your topic. Your research log should show: • what you researched. • the sources you used. • how you found the information. • the useful information you selected.
Checklist of evidence	Your research log containing the collected information you researched on your topic.

Criteria covered by this task:
Learning Aim reference	To achieve the criteria, you must show that you are able to:
A.P1	Search for information on an agreed topic using given research sources.
A.P2	Select simple information from given sources on the agreed topic.
A.M1	Search for information on an agreed topic using own and given sources.
A.M2	Select mostly relevant information from sources on the agreed topic.
A.D1	Carry out a focused and detailed search into an agreed topic.
A.D2	Select relevant information from sources that link clearly to the agreed topic.

Task	Task 2 Our visitors are patient. While you have been researching your chosen staying safe online topic, they have been participating in a few activities. Fortunately, your research is complete, and you are ready to present a summary of your findings into your agreed topic. The principal has asked you to create a PowerPoint presentation to organise and manage the information you have collected.
Checklist of evidence	A PowerPoint presentation on your chosen topic, summarising your research findings.

Criteria covered by this task:
Learning Aim reference	To achieve the criteria, you must show that you are able to:
B.P3	Present an outline summary of research findings on an agreed topic.
B.M3	Present a clear summary of research findings on an agreed topic, with reference to some of the research sources used.
B.D3	Present a focused summary of research findings, with clear referencing to the research sources used.
